Program Description

TalkMail 1.0 is a voice email client designed to be easy to use for any basic PC user. The program allows users to instantly send up to one hour long voice messages to any email address or email list, anywhere in the world.

TalkMail Applications

Sales:

TalkMail allows you to send audio product updates and company news to all your customers in a single step. For example you can send a high quality 30 minute audio clip about a new product to 250 customers at once.

Education:

TalkMail can be used by instructors, in order to broadcast audio lessons to a group of students of any size.

Sports:

TalkMail can be used by sports coaches and team captains, in order to communicate event instructions and game plans.

Marketing:

TalkMail can be used by advertisers in order to broadcast audio advertising and HTML visuals to a target audience of any size from a mailing list.

At the Office:

TalkMail can be used by managers and executives, in order to communicate business strategies and instructions to office staff.

Social Parties and Events:

TalkMail can be used by hosts, in order to invite people to parties and events. Location maps can be included with audio invitations and background music.

Ergonomics and Corporate Liability Protection:

The use of TalkMail reduces the incidence of hand-wrist injuries like carpal tunnel syndrome. Voice email does not require typing, preventing employee fatigue.

Cost Reduction:

Using voice email partially reduces your phone bill, putting money in your pocket.

The Receiver's View

TalkMail voice messages are received as an mp3 file attachment in the recipient's conventional email client (shown in blue in the image below). The recipient can open the audio attachment to listen to it multiple times using his/her audio player to pause fast forward or rewind.

The sender's image can be added to outgoing voice messages in order to personalize the experience. TalkMail supports both text and html email messaging.
